

This guide offers information to help you determine the reporting requirements and applicable charges associated with bringing in liquor products with you when moving to Alberta.

- If you are moving to Alberta from within Canada, there is no reporting requirement.
- If you are moving to Alberta from an international location, including the U.S., and the shipment of your household goods contains no more than 9 litres of liquor, report directly with the Canada Border Services Agency (CBSA) at <http://www.cbsa-asfc.gc.ca/do-rb/provinces/ab-eng.html>.
- If you are moving to Alberta from an international location, including the U.S., and the shipment of your household goods contains more than 9 litres of liquor, continue reading this guide.

If you are moving to Alberta from an international location and your household goods include liquor products, note that:

- There is no limit in quantities you can bring back as long as the liquor is/was in your possession at the time of your move.
- The liquor will be subject to customs duty, excise duty, GST, and provincial mark-up.

To calculate the applicable charges for liquor you will be bringing back, record the following details for each of your liquor products:

- Product description
- Number of bottles
- Size of the bottles in ml
- Alc./vol. as expressed on the label
- Country of origin as expressed on the label
- Price paid or declared value and currency (If you are making the declaration in currency other than Canadian dollars, include the date of direct shipment to Canada (from your moving company or freight forwarder)). This is the date used by the CBSA for the exchange rate. If the shipment has not been picked up yet or you do not have a shipping date, the amount payable will be an approximate due to exchange rate fluctuations.)

Forward the completed declaration of the items above, including the address you are moving from and to, to customshold@aglc.ca. A member of the Customs and Excise team will contact you and advise the amount payable, and can further assist with additional questions.

The amount will be payable to the Alberta Gaming and Liquor Commission (AGLC) by certified cheque, bank draft or money order in Canadian dollars only.

Upon receipt of payment, we will email you a copy of the stamped paid invoice to take with you to the CBSA office for the release of your shipment.
