The AGLC licences and regulates the gaming industry in Alberta, including the licensing of charitable gaming activities.

The Criminal Code (Canada) requires that groups participating in charitable gaming are charitable or religious and that the money earned from charitable gaming is directed to charitable purposes.

These four criteria are used to determine "what is a charitable purpose":

- ✓ Relief of poverty
- ✓ Advancement of education
- ✓ Advancement of religion
- ✓ Other purposes beneficial to the community

In order to be eligible to hold charitable gaming activities, a group must have a broad-based volunteer membership, a democratically chosen executive, and unpaid members and directors. Groups must demonstrate that they offer programs that benefit the broader community and not the self-interest of members.

A complete application form with current information including all requested supporting documents will prevent delays in processing the application. You will receive an answer in writing of the eligibility decision.

Applicants found eligible for gaming licensing may be subject to an eligibility review at any time to ensure continued compliance with AGLC policies.
